

"Stake Presidency Meeting 1910," painted by Vernon Murdock, (right of painting), was presented to the Heber City Council last week by Ray Farrell (left), manager of Heber Light and Power, Inc. The power company commissioned the painting of the old Wasatch Stake Tabernacle, now the Heber City Municipal building, as a gift to the City. Midway Mayor Eugene Probst (second from left), taking part in the presentation, said the gift was in honor of Mayor Gordon Mendenhall (right) and the City Council, who were responsible for renovating the building after it had been "falling to pieces" for a quarter of a century.
